Art Gallery of Hamilton announces new Member's Benefit

As the Art Gallery of Hamilton nears the first year anniversary of its reopening after extensive renovations, it is pleased to announce an important new Member's benefit. Beginning May 27th, all AGH Members will receive free admission to all AGH banner exhibitions.

Previously, AGH Members received discounted admission pricing. Free admission to all non-banner exhibitions continues, courtesy of Orlick Industries.

"AGH Members provided steadfast support of our building campaign, attended our off-site programming during renovations and celebrated with us in our revitalized Gallery", said AGH President and CEO Louise Dompierre. "We are delighted to honour Member's vital support in this meaningful way."

This new Member's benefit coincides with the opening of two exciting AGH exhibitions: Sublime Embrace: Experiencing Consciousness in Contemporary Art (on view May 27 to September 4) and Great Masters Series: Vincent van Gogh (on view May 28 to September 23).

The Art Gallery of Hamilton strives to offer a continuing roster of new and engaging exhibitions - international in scope and quality. With three banner exhibitions each year, and with just one visit to each, an adult Membership will save $36.00 over the course of one year. Individual Memberships start at $55.00.

Additional Membership benefits include discounts at the Shop at AGH and Café at AGH and reciprocal benefits to select North American museums and galleries.

To become an AGH Member and receive the many benefits Membership offers, please visit www.artgalleryofhamilton.com or call Tina Eidukaitis, Manager, Membership at 905-527-6610, ext. 250.
