Based on the novel by Georges Simenon, and directed by Cédric Kahn, Feux Rouges is an edge-of-your-seat thriller in the tradition of Alfred Hitchcock. Antoine and Hélène are off to pick up their children at summer camp, joining the throngs of French vacationers on the highway to the south. As the congestion on the highway heats up, partially due to police roadblocks set up to catch a convicted escaped murderer, so does the atmosphere in the car as tensions surrounding Antoine's alcoholism surface. Antoine, fed up both with the congestion and conversation, swerves onto a side road, and scampers into a bar. Another stop, and another quick drink later, he returns to discover that his wife is not waiting for him. A man appears from the shadows and demands a ride. Who might he be?

The AGH Film Programme is organized in partnership with The Film Circuit, a charitable, cultural, and educational organization that is a division of the Toronto International Film Festival Group. The AGH Film Programme receives funding from Turkstra Lumber, media support from View Magazine and Wave 94.7 and is supported by the Ontario Arts Council and The Canada Council for the Arts.
